Inspiring Dancer

With inspiration you can follow your dreams and you will not give up. Misty Copeland is an African-American person and her dream was to be the principal dancer in the American Ballet Theater. However, many people told her no because she was not white and all the principal dancers in history were white. Misty Copeland confronted many things to make her dream come true. With effort and determination, she became the principal dancer at the American Ballet Theater. Since Misty Copeland followed her dream it has inspired many people in the world to keep doing what they like to do no matter how you look.

One way Misty Copeland inspires other people is by her courage to accomplish her goals. According to author Francesca Bossone, "Copeland's sense of determination, perseverance, and
